THE Laramie Boomerang is not surprised that there is too much laxity of discipline among the Mormons, for "this is a state of affairs that is bound to exist in a society where a man has a different sized corset hanging on each bed-post, and is proud of it."

A SAN FRANCISCO divine announced that he would preach upon the subject, "Hearts Are Trumps." The sensation-loving audience who went to hear him learned nothing about love or gambling, but had a regular old-fashioned theological discourse poured into their unwilling ears.

SOME boys at Tucson, Texas, undertook to make a statue, and their plan for getting a mould was to cover a playmate's face thickly with mud. They tried it, giving the subject no breathing holes, and he was suffocated so nearly to death that the doctors had great difficulty in saving him.

She Retained Her Grip.

"Welcome home, Pansy."

"Dappledale was at its prettiest this sweet June day as it nestled cozily among the hills that towered above it on every side. Down in the shady glen where the village church stood, almost hidden by the cypress trees whose great boughs of green were swept caressingly against the sides of the modest structure, Pansy Perkins was standing, and as Ethelbert Pettigill spoke the words with which this chapter opens, her face lightened up with a radiant smile that was beautiful in its sad expanse of territory.

"Come to me, Pansy," he said.

It was Ethelbert's voice, tender, gentle, that spoke, yet with something in its tones that made the girl pause in her excited, feverish walk up and down, and she pressed her hands to her throbbing temples, looking at him with large, bright, pathetic eyes. But he stretched out his hand and she came to him. He pressed his arm around her waist and held her to his breast a moment in silence.

Presently Pansy spoke. "It is very hot, is it not, darling?" she said.

"Yes," replied Ethelbert, "and it is getting late, and we should be going home"—but as she spoke the girl looked up at him with those handsome dark eyes that had watched so many men.

"Do you love me?" she said.

"Passionately, my love," was the reply, in tremulous tones.

"And will you buy me some ice-cream?" she continued.

Ethelbert felt his heart throbbing against his suspender, and for an instant he could not reply. But the momentary agitation was soon over, and he spoke out in clear, mellow tones.

"I will do that with pleasure," he said.

The peachy cheek of the girl was laid close to his now, and the velvet lips kissed him tenderly back of the left ear. And then, turning her head slightly, Pansy whispered to herself:

"I have not lost my grip."—Chicago Tribune.

ENGLISH FEMALE BITTERS sends red blood to a sickly woman's cheeks and strength to her muscles, by giving and appetite, aiding digestion and building up the system. All sickly women who need a never-failing female regulator, will be delighted with its prompt action.

An American Fable.

A Jackdaw one day made its appearance in a grove where a number of birds had assembled to talk business, and as soon as he could secure the floor he began:

"My dear friends, I desire to call your attention to one of the saddest cases it has been my lot to know. Some of you will remember that Mr. Blue Bird was killed by a stone thrown by a boy some six weeks ago. His Widow was left without any means of support, and in addition to her great grief she is now in need of the necessities of life."

"Here! here!" cried the Partridge and the Loon in chorus.

"It has quite melted my heart," continued the Jackdaw, "and I have taken it upon myself to see if something can't be done. Let us be charitable. Let us open our purses. Let us go at it and at least soften the pangs of poverty, even if we cannot dry the tears of grief."

"That's my style, and here's an 'X' for the hat," said the Fish Hawk as he drew a roll of wealth from his hind pocket.

The Turkey Buzzard followed suit, the Nightingale, Robin, Mocking Bird and others chimed in what they could spare, and when a good fat purse had been made up the Heron arose and inquired:

"I—that is—your know—I'd like to ask how much Mr. Jackdaw chipped in?"

"Just what I was going to ask," added the Owl.

"Gentlemen—I—I didn't contribute anything," replied the Jackdaw—"I'm the one who draws up the Resolutions of Sympathy instead of chipping in cash."

MORAL: Resolutions of Sympathy should be baked into hours before being eaten.—Detroit Free Press.

Wanted An Understanding.

A country merchant who was taking baking powder in bulk from a city firm, called at headquarters the other day to say that there was something wrong with the goods.

"I don't think so," was the reply; "we make the best baking powder in the country."

"I think we have to have a more perfect understanding," continued the dealer. "Now, then, you adulterate before you send me; then I adulterate before I ship; then the retailer adulterates before he sells; and the consumer can't be blamed for growing ill."

"What do you mean?"

"Why, suppose you put in 10 per cent. of chalk; then I put in 20 per cent. of whitening; then the retailer puts in 30 per cent. of baking powder, and unless he's a born hog he'll be perfectly satisfied. You see, if you adulterate 50 per cent. on the start, and I adulterate as much more, and the retailer adulterates as much as both together, it's mighty hard for the consumer to tell whether he's investing in baking powder or putty. We must give him something for his money, if it's only chalk."—Wall Street News.

Sublime Candor.

Judge Tarbell tells the following good joke on himself: A short time after his retirement from the bench he happened to meet an old friend with whom he had not seen for some time. The Judge, all smiles and heartiness, effervesced over his friend in such a way as to provoke the inquiry:

"What office are you a candidate for now, Judge?"

"The Judge made a deprecatory movement with an outward turned palm and said:

"For none at all, my dear brother; I'm simply a candidate for the Kingdom of Heaven."

His friend regarded him sorrowfully for an instant, and then, with more wit than politeness, and more profanity than either, said:

"I'll bet you don't carry a d—d township!"

THOSE troublesome diseases peculiar to women are caused by a relaxed and flabby condition of the muscular system. If the constitution has not been completely sapped, LEIS' DANDELION TONIC, taken persistently in small doses after meals, will effect a speedy and permanent cure. In any case it will afford great relief and can do no possible harm; therefore try it. A bottle costs but one dollar, to be obtained at all druggists.

A CORRESPONDENT of the Kennebec (Me.) Journal says that "older-drinking has become a great evil among the rural population of that State, as many laboring men will not work unless it is furnished them by the farmer, and many farmers and farmers' sons are too much addicted to its use."

A SURE, safe and prompt female regulator is in great demand among married and single ladies, yet strange to say, only one has ever been offered and that is ENGLISH FEMALE BITTERS. It restores and regulates all irregular monthly uterine action, cures female weakness and excesses, removes natural obstructions, adds iron to the blood, strengthens and builds up the whole system, and cures the nervous and hysterical.

D'HARTER'S

A combination of Potassium and Phosphorus in a palatable form. The only preparation of iron that will not blacken the teeth, so characteristic of other iron preparations.

GENTLEMEN: I have used DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC in my practice, and in an experience of twenty-five years in medicine, have never found anything to give the results that DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC does. In many cases of Nervous Prostration, Female Diseases, Dyspepsia, and an impoverished condition of the blood, this powerful remedy, has in my hands, made some wonderful cures. Cases that have baffled some of our most eminent physicians, have yielded to this great and incomparable remedy. I prescribe it in preference to any iron preparation made. In fact, such a compound as DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC is a necessity in my practice. DR. ROBERT SAMUELS, 210 Wash Avenue, ST. LOUIS, MO., Nov. 22th, 1881.

It gives color to the blood, natural healthful tone to the digestive organs and nervous system, making it applicable to General Debility, Loss of Appetite, Prostration of Vital Forces and Impotence.
